

Department of Clinical Neuroscience
Division of Insurance Medicine

Studies of how physicians describe problematic sick-listing cases

The aim of this project is to gain knowledge on factors involved in physicians in primary care and occupational health experiencing sick-listing cases as problematic, using a physician perspective. Analyses are based on problematic cases physicians have written about before joining a course in sickness insurance.

Publications

1. Engblom M, Alexanderson K, Rudebeck CE. Characteristics of sick-listing cases that physicians consider problematic – analyses of written case reports. Scand J Primary Health Care, 2009; 27:250-5.
2. Engblom M, Alexanderson K, Englund L, Normén G, Rudebeck CE. When physicians get stuck in sick-listing consultations– a qualitative study of categories of sick-listing dilemmas. Work, 2010; 35:137-42.
3. Engblom M, Alexanderson K, Rudebeck CE. Physicians' messages in problematic sickness certification: a narrative analysis of case reports. BMC Family Practice, 2011:12.
4. Engblom M. Sickness certification when experienced as problematic by physicians. PhD thesis. Karolinska Institutet, 2011.

In Swedish

5. Engblom M, Rudebeck C, Englund L, Normén G. "Inte doktors bord" – ett vanligt dilemma i sjukskrivningskonsultationer. Läkartidningen 2005;102:3666-3674.