

Traveling for presenting our research is an important part of our task as scientists. However, emissions from KI travel represent one of the significant environmental aspects, and 90% of the CO₂ emissions are from air travel. In order to bring our awareness of the problem, KI will now provide every department with statistics over air travel booked through KI travel agency Amex. See below the first graphs for OnkPat as compared to the whole of KI. The goal is to follow up the statistics over the years and develop measures to achieve a reduction.
