Message from Oliver Bogler, MD Anderson Cancer Center to Participants in the Nordic Global Academic Program 2017 Workshop

Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of MD Anderson Cancer Center and our Global Academic Program I welcome you to this workshop and congratulate the organizers on putting together such an exciting program focusing on many important questions in cancer today.

At MD Anderson we believe that far-reaching collaboration is critical for making progress towards ending cancer, and we feel fortunate to have such great partners in Scandinavia. By bringing the power of our institutions – which is really the power of our people – together we can share ideas and resources and so serve our patients and our communities more effectively.

For this reason we believe in the power of networks as you know and so applaud the Nordic group. You - our friends from the Norwegian Cancer Consortium, Karolinska Institutet and this year's hosts Rigshospitalet – have come together to form a regional powerhouse and leveraged our common partnership to accelerate exchange and progress. Thank you. As is so often the case, our northern colleagues are innovative and collaborative and bring vision to our work.

In closing I want to express my regret that I could not be with you in person, thank you for your collaboration and congratulate you on creating such a great workshop. I trust the next few hours will be fruitful and hope that they may lead to new initiatives that we can fulfill together.

With my best personal wishes,

Oliver Bogler
